

Published on The National Law Review <https://natlawreview.com>

Unemployment During COVID-19: Reopening the Workplace

Article By:

Ashley Prickett Cuttino

In the third episode of our four-part series on unemployment benefits during the COVID-19 pandemic, Ashley Cuttino discusses potential issues that employers may want to consider as they continue to return furloughed and laid off employees to the workplace, including health insurance benefits, employee refusals to return to work, obligations under federal and state sick leave laws, and partial offset rules.

https://media.blubrry.com/ogletreedeakinspodcasts/content.blubrry.com/ogletreedeakinspodcasts/Unemployment_During_COVID-19_Reopening_the_Workplace.mp3?_ =1

© 2025, Ogletree, Deakins, Nash, Smoak & Stewart, P.C., All Rights Reserved.

National Law Review, Volume X, Number 189

Source URL: <https://natlawreview.com/article/unemployment-during-covid-19-reopening-workplace>