

Published on The National Law Review <https://natlawreview.com>

Podcast: Congressional Health Care Legislative Agenda – Diagnosing Health Care

Article By:

Employment, Labor, Workforce Management

The 117th Congressional health care agenda, including COVID-19 related action, will require 60 votes in the Senate or passage through budget reconciliation. In the Diagnosing Health Care Podcast, attorneys Mark Lutes, Philo Hall, and Timothy Murphy discuss the prospects for additional coronavirus relief and what that would mean for stakeholders, as well as the possibility for coverage expansion through changes to the Affordable Care Act or Medicaid.

For more information on the ongoing changes coming out of Washington, visit Epstein Becker Green's "First 100 Days" page.

The Diagnosing Health Care podcast series examines the business opportunities and solutions that exist despite the high-stakes legal, policy, and regulatory issues that the health care industry faces. Subscribe on your favorite podcast platform.

Listen on Apple Podcasts, Google Podcasts, Overcast, Spotify, Stitcher, YouTube, and Vimeo.

©2025 Epstein Becker & Green, P.C. All rights reserved.

National Law Review, Volume XI, Number 41

Source URL: <https://natlawreview.com/article/podcast-congressional-health-care-legislative-agenda-diagnosing-health-care>