

Published on The National Law Review <https://natlawreview.com>

---

Employment Law Legends, Episode 6: The ADA Strikes Back in Sutton v. United Air Lines, Inc.

Article By:

J. Paul Rinnan

---

Is a person who wears glasses considered disabled under the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA)? The answer to this question would perplex the courts for years and lead to a legendary showdown between Congress and the Supreme Court of the United States. When the dust settled, disability law would be changed forever.

https://media.blubrry.com/ogletreedeakinspodcasts/content.blubrry.com/ogletreedeakinspodcasts/Employment\_Law\_Legends\_Episode\_6\_Edited.mp3

© 2025, Ogletree, Deakins, Nash, Smoak & Stewart, P.C., All Rights Reserved.

---

National Law Review, Volume XI, Number 82

Source URL: <https://natlawreview.com/article/employment-law-legends-episode-6-ada-strikes-back-sutton-v-united-air-lines-inc>