

Published on The National Law Review <https://natlawreview.com>

Podcast: CMS and OIG Final Rules for Innovating Your Value-Based Payment Program – Diagnosing Health Care

Article By:

Anjali N.C. Downs

In this episode of the Diagnosing Health Care Podcast: The Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (“CMS”) and the Office of Inspector General (“OIG”) of the Department of Health and Human Services have at last published their long-awaited companion final rules advancing value-based care. The rules present significant changes to the regulatory framework of the federal physician self-referral law (commonly referred to as the “Stark Law”) and to the federal health care program’s Anti-Kickback Statute, or “AKS.”

Epstein Becker Green attorneys Anjali Downs, Jennifer Michael, Lesley Yeung, and Paulina Grabczak give an overview of the final rules and point out key issues health care companies should carefully consider as they take advantage of these value-based care safe harbors and exceptions.

The Diagnosing Health Care podcast series examines the business opportunities and solutions that exist despite the high-stakes legal, policy, and regulatory issues that the health care industry faces. Listen below and subscribe on your favorite podcast platform.

©2025 Epstein Becker & Green, P.C. All rights reserved.

National Law Review, Volume XI, Number 98

Source URL: <https://natlawreview.com/article/podcast-cms-and-oig-final-rules-innovating-your-value-based-payment-program>