

Office of Health Care Affordability Publishes Near-Final Regulations on Health Care Transaction Notice Requirements

Article By:

Paul A. Gomez

Ashley N. Osak

Matthew T. Lin

On August 1, 2023, the Office of Health Care Affordability (OHCA) published near-final regulations on health care transaction notice requirements. The regulations, which are part of the Affordable Care Act (ACA), require health care providers to provide notice to patients of their rights to privacy and security. The regulations also require health care providers to provide notice to patients of their rights to access their health information. The regulations are effective on January 1, 2024. The regulations are a significant change in the latest version of the ACA.

-
-
-
-
-
-
-

The regulations are a significant change in the latest version of the ACA. The regulations require health care providers to provide notice to patients of their rights to privacy and security. The regulations also require health care providers to provide notice to patients of their rights to access their health information. The regulations are effective on January 1, 2024.

© Polsinelli PC, Polsinelli LLP in California

National Law Review, Volumess XIII, Number 334

Source URL: <https://natlawreview.com/article/office-health-care-affordability-publishes-near-final-regulations-health-care>