We have been tracking the impressive increase in TCPA cases year over year but October was really one for the record books.

TCPA class action filings spiked 43% above October, 2022—continuing an overall trend of MUCH more TCPA class action activity in 2023 over 2022.

And if that wasn't eye popping enough for you— 69% of all TCPA cases were filed as class actions. That's 7 out of every 10 cases.

I have never seen anything like this— no one has. A federal statute that is generating many times more class actions than individual suits? Such a thing has never existed before.

Indeed, other statutes generate single digit class litigation.

And once the FCC's new ruling takes effect we can foresee a further spike in TCPA class litigation.

The TCPA really is a once in a generation opportunity for plaintiff's lawyers to get rich, and man are they taking it.
