

Published on The National Law Review <https://natlawreview.com>

What to Do If the Government Knocks on Your Company's Door ... or Breaks It Down [Video, Podcast]

Article By:

George B. Breen

Alkida Kacani

Eric W. Moran

FBI! Open up! Is your organization prepared to handle a government investigation?

Guilty or not, having a preparedness plan in place for when a government agency comes knocking is just as important as conducting a company fire drill.

In this episode of Speaking of Litigation, Epstein Becker Green litigators Alkida Kacani, George Breen, and Eric Moran discuss a few of the most common (and invasive) legal maneuvers government investigators may take when approaching a company or its employees.

When dealing with civil investigative demands or even surprise search warrants, there are a plethora of dos and don'ts that each member of your regulated organization should be trained on.

©2024 Epstein Becker & Green, P.C. All rights reserved.

National Law Review, Volumess XIII, Number 339

Source URL: <https://natlawreview.com/article/what-do-if-government-knocks-your-companys-door-or-breaks-it-down-podcast>
